

Tudor Curtifan is since 2018 editor-in-chief of the publication DefenseRomania, the largest media publication in Romania in the field of security and foreign policy. He graduated from the Faculty of History at the University of Bucharest, where he also completed a master program. Later he also specialized in national security and international relations, constantly publishing information about these challenges. Among his areas of interest are the integration of new technologies in theaters of operations, counter-propaganda and the ex-Soviet space.